mexico

Did you know that, despite the Spanish and Portuguese conquests and massacres that colonised Central and South America in the 16th century, descendants of the Mayans and Aztecs are still alive and well in Mexico today? That in the depths of the jungle there are cities with sky-scraping pyramids that are 1500-1800 years old? That in this country the Catholic faith and the ancient Aztec cult of the 'goddess of the dead', which dates back to before the arrival of the Conquistadors, can coexist? That artists in this country can pay their income taxes with their art - even with a painting of their own hand?

Mexico is not just drugs, tequila, and mariachi! Neither are sombrero hats!

Mexico is a true culinary paradise, so much so that since 2010 UNESCO has declared Mexican cuisine part of the world's intangible cultural heritage. It's the country where chocolate and chilies come from, and for that matter, hot ice cream. It's also where corn came from, and where popcorn was consumed in the Aztec Empire (around 5,500 years ago).

We're going to give you a glimpse into the cuisine of this exotic country, taking you on a culinary adventure from its Aztec heritage through Santa Muerte to the white sandy beaches of Acapulco.

Tacos, nachos, frijoles, enchiladas, quesadillas, burritos - add a little salsa, a dash of chili, and a good Corona or a stiff tequila - who hasn't heard of these typical Mexican dishes and drinks?

Now's your chance to join us for a taste of exciting, traditional Mexican cuisine!

Enjoy your meal and have a good adventure!
